Oak Sails

Cherry, Walnut, and Oak SAILS in white gold dust for floors and walls

The latest CADORIN additions to the TRACKS PLANKS Collection feature a patented new type of working recalling sailboat sails that has been given to the wood surfaces. Countless tiny sails beating the wind are embossed in relief in the characteristic triangular and oblong shapes of different sail panels.

The inspiration for this unprecedented pattern signed by Cadorin comes from the world of sailing to add yet another original type of working to the Gravel and Woven patterns already present in the exclusive Tracks Planks Collection.

These parquet planks are designed for both horizontal (flooring) and vertical (wall panelling) use with an exclusive raised patterning that evokes the pleasures of sailing. Various finishes can be given to these "VELA" Sails models: Cadorin offers Oak in pastel tones like sand-stone, and WALNUT and CHERRY in a suggestive White Gold Dust finish.

Thanks to the glistening sheen given by this application of metal powder, these Gold Dust models trigger fascinating plays of light in addition to the added value given by antique-effect gold applied by hand.

Oak - Woven working - Rock finished

STONE WOVEN OAK, a tissue wood floor with a modern design

An advanced suggestion that evokes the Stone Woven Oak wood floor. On the surface develops an embossed texture never seen before, almost to re-create a weave of linen, which wraps around the entire floor. This special working, called Woven, isn't only pleasing to the eye and agreeable to the touch: it also makes the surface of wood very hard and compact, increasing the tread resistance of the floor, while Stone finishing gives the wood a contemporary face, perfect to be inserted into a modern and evolved context!

Oak - Woven working - Country finished

WOVEN OAK COUNTRY, when elegance of wood meets the texture of tissue

Brand new the Woven Oak Country parquet of Cadornin: on the surface develops an embossed texture never seen before, almost to re-create a weave which wraps around the entire floor. This special working, called Woven, isn't only pleasing to the eye and agreeable to the touch: it also makes the surface of wood very hard and compact, increasing the tread resistance of the parquet.

This working combined with the right finishing "Country" make an unusual look parquet, the wood revised in a modern, ideal for high design spaces.

Walnut - Woven working - Antique finished

Antique Woven Varnished Walnut, a modern weft with the charm of the past

A raised weft never seen before on a wood floor is what Cadorn offers here in a special Woven working that is now a part of the Tracce di Listoni Collection. For these parquet planks (used for both floors and wall paneling) given the name Antique Woven Varnished Walnut, the weft of a precious fabric is worked onto the top surface of Walnut rich in variously shaded grain and then given an antique finish for a truly original final effect.

Woven working is not only an authentic pleasure to touch and see, it also makes the surface of the wood particularly hard and compact and increases the floor's wear resistance.

This planking has been given a particularly striking vintage look by the application of a Painted Antique Effect finish that evokes roots that go deep in the past.

American Walnut is one of the species selected by Cadorn to be awarded its Selected Wood mark. Felled in North America, this is one of the varieties most widely used for furniture, flooring, and facing.

GRAVEL of LARCH contemporary charm plank

Walk along a gravel beach, feeling under bare feet sweet little round and smooth pebbles. The suggestion is strong but it is even more so if, once you open your eyes, you realize that the surface is a soft wood. The last frontier of Cadorn Group is this: impress on the floor real reliefs, a completely new and patented novelty in the field of wood flooring/paneling. So the Gravel of Larch proposal of Tracks Planks collection, that reproduces the random disorder of gravel, is eye-catching, creative, definitely out of the traditional schemes.

The raw material is the Austrian Larch worked on the surface with a gravel relief drawing and subsequently finished with a nuanced gray and white varnish, through which you can see the wood grains. This kind of superficial working produces two extraordinary effects: on the one hand the unique aesthetic relief combined with shades of color, on the other the wood hardness, also for the LARCH by nature a soft and tender wood, the result of this working is a hard and solid wood, and an increase of the resistance to wear and the practicality of the parquet.

Larch - Gravel working - Nuanced gray and white finished

The Gravel of Larch parquet belongs to the Tracks Planks collection, a patented line that offers perspectives and forms never seen before on a wooden plank. Besides the Gravel working, it includes also the Woven working that reproduces the texture of a linen cloth, or that one with animals, moon and stars prints, for children rooms wood floors.

The use of wooden planks isn't only for horizontal position, but always more this solution is utilized also for wall and decorative coverings.

The positioning of the Gravel of Larch planks on the wall is an unusual mix of orientation, a puzzle both horizontally and vertically, so as to achieve a new design for a fascinating result.

The Austrian Larch is a wood that is selected by Cadorin with the logo More Wood Fewer Km: its supplying is made in fact by a distance very close to the Cadorin company (150km), making a contribution to reducing the impact on climate change caused by greenhouse gases from transport.

The TRACKS PLANKS Collection

Tracks Planks is a patented product line that offers elements of perspective and forms never seen before in wood floors. In addition to its Weave planking (also available in other types of wood and variants), Tracks Planks also features patterns developed expressly for children (lunar shapes and stars, bear and wolf tracks) and Gravel working that gives wood the natural effect of gravel, not to mention the SAIL working that incorporates myriad tiny sail shapes beating against the wind into the surface of the floor .

All these workings conducted through an applied pressure technique make the wood particularly hard and compact and increase the wear resistance of the surface to make it ideal for every interior.
