Ot/tra by Zimmerman Workshop Returns To Architectural Digest Design Show 2018

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK—March 21, 2018—Ot/tra by Zimmerman Workshop is pleased to be returning to the Architectural Digest Show. Last year the Brooklyn-based company launched the nine-piece Catenary Collection of wood furniture at the show; this year it will offer an expanded collection that includes a new coffee table, bench, chair, and console table. The furniture will be on view at Booth #M703, in the MADE section.

Co-founders Sofia and Adam Zimmerman formed their Brooklyn, NY-based architectural practice Zimmerman Workshop Architecture + Design in 2010. Ot/tra is a natural extension of the brand, since furniture design and selection have always been a part of Zimmerman Workshop's services. Organic yet refined, the furniture is designed to complement a range of interiors, particularly corporate, hospitality, public space, and residential.

"It's such an honor to participate in this show. Last year, not only did we get to share our furniture with countless design professionals enthusiasts, we also got valuable feedback that we took into consideration as we refined the collection and added new pieces," says Adam Zimmerman.

Among the new offerings are a coffee table and bench, both featuring a graceful, asymmetric base. Ot/tra also took the design of its signature table to create a new console table. It has also made refinements to several existing pieces, including the bar stool, chair, and side table.

Most pieces are customizable, and all are made-to-order in Ot/tra's own workshop in Brooklyn. Lead time is 12-14 weeks. Wood options are white ash, natural oak, walnut, and blackened ash.

Outside of the AD Show, the collection is available for viewing at Zimmerman Workshop's Brooklyn studio, located at 68 Jay Street, Suite 612, Brooklyn, NY 11201. Appointments can be made by email (info@ot-tra.com) or by calling 718.682.3045.
