This new collection of furniture presented at the Architectural Digest Design show by Fernweh Woodworking features rich Walnut wood and jet black Ash, brought to life by the natural organic joinery that has become a staple of Fernweh Woodworking furniture designs.

From the maker:

Fernweh Woodworking began in 2015, and I call my role "Designer/Craftsman" because I cherish both the woodworking and design elements of the company. A former Marine Officer, I have a bachelor's degree in business from Purdue University, and I'm a self-taught woodworker. I'm inspired by the ethical design philosophy and work of Sam Maloof, and I particularly admire the legacy and designs of Hans Wegner.

I view myself as just a beginner woodworker and designer, and to some extent I hope to always feel that way; no matter how much you learn, you should always be overwhelmed and excited by the oceans of things yet to be discovered.

I hope to do my small part to keep the craft of woodworking not only alive, but fresh.
